STAFF MEMORANDUM NO. 28-57

SUBJECT: Proposed Terms of Reference for a Special Estimate on Sino-Soviet Reactions to the Introduction of Nuclear Weapons by the US into Countries on the Periphery of the Bloc

THE PROBLEM

To estimate the manner in which the Sino-Soviet Bloc would probably react to a build-up of nuclear weapons in countries adjacent to or near its borders.

SCOPE NOTE

The purpose of this estimate is to determine the manner in which the Sino-Soviet Bloc would probably react to a build-up of nuclear weapons in countries adjacent to or near its borders. In particular, consideration should be given to possible retaliatory measures against individual host countries, to possible effects on Sino-Soviet policy toward the divided countries (Germany, Korea, Vietnam), and to possible effects on the Soviet approach to disarmament.

QUESTIONS BEARING ON THE PROBLEM

1. Briefly what have been the Sino-Soviet Bloc reactions to the deployment of US nuclear weapons to countries bordering on the Bloc?

2. What will be the probable Sino-Soviet reaction to possible future deployments of such weapons? In this respect consideration should be given to such factors as:

- a. the area involved (e.g., NATO countries, particularly West Germany, the Baghdad Pact Countries, Thailand, South Vietnam, Taiwan, Japan, South Korea);
- b. the recipient of the weapons and control of the nuclear war heads (e.g., US forces in being in a particular country, new deployment of US forces accompanying deployment of the weapons, forces of third country ally in area, or indigenous forces);
- c. the general type of delivery system involved (e.g., a purely tactical system such as 280 mm. cannon or a long range guided missile system).
